Part Seven: Jesus Suffered Under Pontius Pilate

Twenty-Ninth Sunday in Ordinary Time

October 20, 2024

This weekend, we welcome Fr. Sonny Matthew, a missionary preacher who joins us for World Mission Sunday. We should always keep in our prayers the work of missionaries of the Gospel around the world and give material support as we are able. This weekend, I am in Santa Fe, New Mexico, at a conference for the Catholic Leadership Institute. Archbishop Pérez and a few others from around the Archdiocese are attending the conference. I am particularly sorry to miss our CYO Mass this weekend—welcome to our fall athletes! Please continue to represent us well, and thank you to all the coaches and volunteers who make our CYO such an essential part of our parish life.

Two more notes—First, there is still time to sign up for an adoration slot. Please use the QR Code available in the bulletin to sign up to spend time with our Eucharistic Lord. Second, have you ever wanted to explore Sicily's shrines and cultural sites? If so, I will lead a trip from October 15 to October 24, 2025. Stops include Palermo, Siracusa, Catania, Mt. Etna, and Monreale. If you want to learn more, please email me at freric@stmarymagdalen.net or call the office to indicate your interest. More details are coming soon!

Today, I offer a reflection on the next article of the Creed, "Jesus suffered under Pontius Pilate."

May the Lord grant you peace!

— Father Eric Banecker

Outside of the Persons of the Trinity, two people are mentioned by name in the Apostles' Creed: the Virgin Mary and Pontius Pilate. In many ways, they could not be more unlike each other. Mary is the humble Jewish woman from the little-known town of Nazareth who, full of grace by God's singular honor, gives her consent to bearing the Son of God as her own child. By her fiat, she becomes the Mother of God and accepts God's plan of salvation on behalf of us all. Pontius Pilate is the Roman magistrate saddled with an undesirable diplomatic assignment as governor of the province of Judea. The Romans preferred using puppet rulers in places far from their home base on the Italian peninsula. That's how they used King Herod, the one of Jesus' infancy. But when he died, the area of Palestine was divided among his three sons. The one in charge of Judea, which included Jerusalem, was so bad that the Romans went against their normal procedure and appointed a military garrison to control the area directly. Pontius Pilate was in charge of that mission.

He had one real job: keep the peace and prevent uprisings among the Jews; this was especially important during the pilgrimage festivals such as Passover, when the population of Jerusalem would swell to many times its usual number. That was when they had to be on the sharpest lookout. But there were perennial efforts to overthrow the Romans. We know that one of Jesus' own apostles was known as a "zealot," one who saw the military overthrow of foreign rule as priority number one for faithful Jews. Jesus himself was very hesitant to use the term "Messiah" for himself, not because it wasn't true, but because at that period in Jewish history, the term "Messiah" had taken on the connotation of a military leader and political ruler. The idea of a Messiah as a figure of spiritual revolution was, of course, present in the Old Testament but not in the forefront of the Jewish mind. The idea of a Messiah who suffered was even more foreign.

On one particular Passover around 28 AD or so, Pilate stood face to face with one Jesus of Nazareth, the Son of Mary, who was accused by the Jewish leaders of blasphemy, a capital crime in the Jewish law, for making himself out to be the Son of God. Of course, Pontius Pilate couldn't care less about such claims, ridiculous as all those arguments were to a pagan governor. So instead, the Jewish leaders created trumped-up charges about Jesus being the leader of a sedition, claiming to be the Messiah who would then lead a rebellion against the Romans. Pilate took one look at Jesus and knew he was not capable of such a thing. But instead of just releasing him, he decided to offer the crowds the choice between Jesus and Barabbas, who was an actual revolutionary.

But Pilate miscalculated. The crowds asked for Barabbas instead. And he acquiesced in order to prevent a riot in the middle of Passover. And so, backed into a corner, Pilate sent a man he knew to be innocent to the Cross, the form of punishment so cruel that Cicero said a good Roman should not even think about it, a punishment which it was forbidden to use against a Roman citizen.

What can we learn from this? We are at a time of year when the question of our elected representatives is on our minds. From congress, the presidency, to local school boards: it seems impossible to avoid yard signs, news reports, and text messages encouraging you to vote for this or that person. We here at St. Mary Magdalen have even been deluged with flyers on our car windows and door handles while we pray at Mass. (This, for the record, is completely unauthorized.)

Yet the story of Pontius Pilate should remind us that true justice is not something that any system of government can provide. At every period in history, the efforts of those in temporal authority have provided decisions that promoted the common good and others that have harmed it. That is undoubtedly true of our country, too. Of course, that does not absolve us as citizens from engaging in the political process in a constructive way; it certainly does not excuse judges, legislators, and executives when their decisions harm others, especially the weakest and most vulnerable. Nevertheless, it is not the Pilates and Caesars who have the last word on history, but rather Christ, the one who suffered unjustly and yet transformed the Cross into the sign of God's salvation and mercy for the whole human race. Indeed, he is the Messiah, the one who overthrows not the kingdom of the Romans but who overthrows the reign of sin, suffering, and death, inaugurating instead the Kingdom of God, which is peace and joy in the Holy Spirit.

Dear friends, in these weeks, above all, when there are many voices telling us that a vote for this or that person is a vote for economic depression or World War III, we must keep our eyes fixed on the horizon of eternity. In other words, what happens inside our church and every Catholic church is so much more important than what the flyers on the cars are about.

Only a society of virtuous people longing for the coming of God's kingdom will be effective in protecting the unborn, the elderly, and those who are poor and far from their homes. We pray, of course, for leaders who will seek some measure of justice for all these groups. But we also remember the Federalist Papers, where James Madison warned Americans that a republic requires virtuous citizens in order to thrive. In other words, if we are unhappy with the options we have for our political leaders, we should remember that they don't just drop out of the sky; they are products of our culture. If we want renewed politics, it has to begin with our culture. Culture is all about what we worship and the things that we love.

Christ has come to save us and lead us into a life where the measure is not justice but perfect charity, where God will be "all in all." This should be our comfort, not just during election season but always.

NEW! THE LEGION OF MARY TUESDAYS AT 9:30 AM

How Does It Work?

Our members meet weekly to pray, plan, and discuss as a group. Then, we go out in pairs to perform Spiritual Works of Mercy within our parish and local community under the guidance of a Spiritual Director, usually a priest or deacon. We call all Catholics who would like to draw closer to Jesus and His Mother to give the Legion a try.

How Do I Start?

Be a guest at our meeting! We invite you to come and see the Legion from the inside—if you wish, you can go as our guest on one of the work assignments with an experienced member. All you need is a willingness to offer a little of your time and energy for the most significant reason in the world—your love of God!

Meetings are every Tuesday at 9:30 AM in our Gathering Room.

Mary, Our Lady, Queen of Angels, pray for us!
